Most people are familiar with hugot lines—statements of brokenness or bitterness over love lost, never was, or never could be, but laced with humor and wit to make them more palatable and relatable. Enjoyable as they may be, these lines can focus too much on the human aspect of love and downplay its true nature.

Love is divine. True, authentic love is of God and is sustained by God. It is not just some fickle human emotion that soars and sinks depending on how we feel or look at things. It is a gift, a grace, so to love without including God in the process will always fail—a weak imitation of a perfect, holy experience of God's will.

Why do we water down God's gifts like this? Marriage, similarly, is authored by God. It is meant to be a lasting covenant that reflects his unwavering love for us, the same eternal love that Jesus has for us, his Church. It is not a mere contract that dissolves when one or both parties fail to keep the terms. It is a bond between persons—a lifetime commitment to love and sacrifice for the good of the other, in the same vein that God remains faithful to the covenant even if his people Israel continually fail to do their part.

Jesus in the Gospel is asked by the Pharisees whether it is lawful for a husband to divorce his wife. Knowing they are testing him, Jesus inquires into the commandment from Moses. The Pharisees reply that Moses permitted a husband to write a bill of divorce and dismiss his wife. Jesus counters that Moses allowed this because of the people's hardness of heart. Jesus thus denounces divorce in part because it has become a tool of injustice. In Israelite law, only men can file for divorce; no reasonable justification is necessary. And when one considers how divorced women are disadvantaged economically and socially, it becomes even more apparent why Jesus cannot accept it.

More importantly, Jesus brings marriage back to the original intent of the Creator: “From the beginning of creation, God made them male and female. For this reason a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh.”

Besides, divorce makes for an easy way out of what should be a lifetime commitment and holy covenant. For sure, some cases merit special consideration, but an honest-to-goodness examen of oneself will usually reveal that the reasons one uses to justify divorce show the root of the problem: we see love as merely human, and it fails precisely because we are not enough to sustain it.

And so, we are brought back to this essential truth: love is divine. If love asks what seems impossible, it is because we are not meant to do it with our own power. Let us surrender it to God; let us allow the Author of marriage and the source of all love to be the pilot and steward of our relationship. This does not mean love will become easy or perfect, but it will give marriage (and all relationships) a solid anchor and a real chance at success.
Entrance Antiphon
(Cf. Est 4:17)
(Recited when there is no opening song.)

Within your will, O Lord, all things are established, and there is none that can resist your will. For you have made all things, the heaven and the earth, and all that is held within the circle of heaven; you are the Lord of all.

Greeting
(The sign of the cross is made here.)

P—The Lord be with you.
All—And with your spirit.

Introduction
(These [or similar words] may be used to address the assembly.)

P—The institution of marriage has always been under attack. Entering a marriage when either or both partners are ill-prepared does not help the resulting union. The pressures of modern living further weaken it. Many no longer consider marriage as a lifetime commitment.

Questioned about divorce, Jesus points to the beginning of creation and declares that what God has joined together, no human being must separate. May the Eucharist unite married couples more intimately with Christ that they may witness to God’s faithful love for his Church.

Penitential Act

P—Brethren (brothers and sisters), let us acknowledge our sins, and so prepare ourselves to celebrate the sacred mysteries. (Pause)

All—I confess to almighty God and to you, my brothers and sisters, that I have greatly sinned in my thoughts and in my words, in what I have done and in what I have failed to do, through my fault, through my fault, through my most grievous fault; therefore I ask blessed Mary ever-Virgin, all the Angels and Saints, and you, my brothers and sisters, to pray for me to the Lord our God.

P—May almighty God have mercy on us, forgive us our sins, and bring us to everlasting life.

All—Amen.

P—Lord, have mercy.
All—Lord, have mercy.

P—Christ, have mercy.
All—Christ, have mercy.

P—Lord, have mercy.
All—Lord, have mercy.

Gloria

Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace to people of good will. We praise you, we bless you, we adore you, we glorify you, we give you thanks for your great glory, Lord God, heavenly King, O God, almighty Father. Lord Jesus Christ, Only Begotten Son, Lord God, Lamb of God, Son of the Father, you take away the sins of the world, have mercy on us; you take away the sins of the world, receive our prayer; you are seated at the right hand of the Father, have mercy on us. For you alone are the Holy One, you alone are the Lord, you alone are the Most High, Jesus Christ, with the Holy Spirit, in the glory of God the Father. Amen.

Collect

P—Let us pray. (Pause)

Almighty ever-living God, who in the abundance of your kindness surpass the merits and the desires of those who entreat you, pour out your mercy upon us to pardon what conscience dreads and to give what prayer does not dare to ask.

Through our Lord Jesus Christ, your Son, who lives and reigns with you in the unity of the Holy Spirit, in the glory of the Father. Amen.

Respontorial Psalm (Ps 128)

R—May the Lord bless us all the days of our lives.

THE LORD God said: “It is not good for the man to be alone. I will make a suitable partner for him.” So the LORD God formed out of the ground various wild animals and various birds of the air, and he brought them to the man to see what he would call them; whatever the man called each of them would be its name. The man gave names to all the cattle, all the birds of the air, and all wild animals; but none proved to be the suitable partner for the man.

So the LORD God cast a deep sleep on the man, and while he was asleep, he took out one of his ribs and closed up its place with flesh. The LORD God then built up into a woman the rib that he had taken from the man. When he brought her to the man, the man said: “This one, at last, is bone of my bones and flesh of my flesh; this one shall be called ‘woman,’ for out of ‘her man’ this one has been taken.” That is why a man leaves his father and mother and clings to his wife, and the two of them become one flesh.

—The word of the Lord.
All—Thanks be to God.

1. Blessed are you who fear the LORD, who walk in his ways! For you shall eat the fruit of your handiwork; blessed shall you be, and favored. (R)

2. Your wife shall be like a fruitful vine in the recesses of your home; your children like olive plants around your table. (R)
3. Behold, thus is the man blessed/ who fears the LORD./ The LORD bless you from Zion:/ may you see the prosperity of Jerusalem/ all the days of your life. (R)

4. May you see your children’s children./ Peace be upon Israel! (R)

Second Reading (Heb 2:9–11)

By becoming man and experiencing the bitterness of death, Jesus becomes a brother to men and women and brings them back to the love of God.

A reading from the Letter to the Hebrews

BROTHERS AND SISTERS:

He “for a little while” was made “lower than the angels,” that by the grace of God he might taste death for everyone. For it was fitting that he, for whom and through whom all things exist, in bringing many children to glory, should make the leader to their salvation perfect through suffering. He who consecrates and those who are being consecrated all have one origin. Therefore, he is not ashamed to call them “brothers.”

—The word of the Lord.
All—Thanks be to God.

Alleluia (1 Jn 4:12) (Stand)

All—Alleluia, alleluia. If we love one another, God remains in us and his love is brought to perfection in us. Alleluia, alleluia.

Gospel (Mk 10:2–16)

P—a reading from the holy Gospel according to Mark
All—Glory to you, O Lord.

THE Pharisees approached Jesus and asked, “Is it lawful for a husband to divorce his wife?” They were testing him. He said to them in reply, “What did Moses command you?” They replied, “Moses permitted a husband to write a bill of divorce and dismiss her.” But Jesus told them, “Because of the hardness of your hearts he wrote you this commandment. But from the beginning of creation, God made them male and female. For this reason, a man shall leave his father and mother and be joined to his wife, and the two shall become one flesh. So, they are no longer two but one flesh. Therefore what God has joined together, no human being must separate.” In the house the disciples again questioned Jesus about this. He said to them, “Whoever divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery against her; and if she divorces her husband and marries another, she commits adultery.” And people were bringing children to him that he might touch them, but the disciples rebuked them. When Jesus saw this he became indignant and said to them, “Let the children come to me; do not prevent them, for the kingdom of God belongs to such as these. Amen, I say to you, whoever does not accept the kingdom of God like a child will not enter it.” Then he embraced them and blessed them, placing his hands on them.

—The Gospel of the Lord.
All—Praise to you, Lord Jesus Christ.

Homily (Sit)

Profession of Faith (Stand)

All—I believe in one God, the Father almighty, maker of heaven and earth, of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ, the Only Begotten Son of God, born of the Father before all ages. God from God, Light from Light, true God from true God, begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father; through him all things were made. For us men and for our salvation he came down from heaven, (at the words that follow, up to and including and became man, bow) and by the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary and became man.

For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate, he suffered death and was buried, and rose again on the third day in accordance with the Scriptures. He ascended into heaven and is seated at the right hand of the Father. He will come again in glory to judge the living and the dead and his kingdom will have no end.

I believe in the Holy Spirit, the Lord, the giver of life, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, who with the Father and the Son is adored and glorified, who has spoken through the prophets.

I believe in one, holy, catholic, and apostolic Church. I confess one Baptism for the forgiveness of sins and I look forward to the resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come. Amen.
